Gone to the Southward or Westward,

A YELLOW WOMAN, called Celia Detcher, in the 23d year of her age, about 5 feet 2 or 3 inches high—marks like moles on the right side of her face, which, with several letters on her left arm, were made with india ink. She is about four months gone in a state of pregnancy—followed her husband, Jim Clark, a yellow man, who was purchased from this place and taken away in company with a large number of slaves, about two weeks ago, by a man of the name of Basset. It is supposed they have gone to the westward: Celia was born free, and had with her a notarial certificate of her freedom, and description of her person. Her mother, the subscriber, is much afflicted by her manner of going away, and desires that any humane people who may chance to meet with her, will persuade her to return, being apprehensive that when she gets into a strange country, where she will be unknown and out of the reach of her friends and those who would be likely to protect her, attempts may be made by some avaricious and unprincipled persons, to deprive her of her liberty, and sell her for a slave. Should any such attempts be made, fifty dollars reward will be paid to any person who will communicate such information as shall lead to the conviction of the offenders, and the recovery of the woman.

OLIVER CROMWELL AND BONAPARTE.

If Bonaparte was fortunate in an extreme degree, so was Cromwell; for every circumstance favored his elevation. The emperor and empire had made peace with France and Sweden in 1648, and all equally needed repose. Spain, exhausted by a war of nearly a hundred years, had lost Portugal, and was harassed both by Massimello in Naples, and the rebellious inhabitants of Calabria and Roussillon. Portugal, whose independence was but in its infancy, cultivated the friendship of England. The old, infirm pope, (Innocent) was governed by his niece, Donna Olympia, who, from her cupidity, was called the harpy of the church. Venice was engaged in warfare, lost Crete, and was obliged to maintain an army in Dalmatia, at enormous expense. Tuscany's policy and economy made her shun all broils. Savoy was governed, like a child, under the regency of its French mother. The Swiss, enveloped by their mountains, cared nothing for external affairs. Denmark's magnanimity, had she not been too feeble, and at variance with Sweden, would have led her to do more for Charles I. and II.; while Sweden, wishing to destroy the power of Denmark, coveted an alliance with England. Russia and Prussia had then but trivial influence in the scale of politics; and lastly, France was torn by civil commotions. It can, therefore, be no matter of astonishment that under such circumstances as these, a man who, like Cromwell, was possessed of courage, activity, prudence, fertility of resources, cunning, boldness and the gifts of persuasion, should succeed in all his undertakings. Not but he had his crosses too. He was obliged to retire from before the small fortress of Duncannon, in Ireland, without having been able to take it by storm; and his projects were sometimes chimerical. When Dunkirk fell into his hands, he thought, with an army of forty thousand men, and a fleet of fifty sail, to subjugate all Europe. He demanded of the Dutch also to choose him their protector, and thus to consolidate their republic with the pretended commonwealth of England; and it has even been asserted that he once laid a plan to destroy Rome, and to bring the treasurers of Loretto, together with the pope himself, to London. Were not these very much in the spirit of some of Bonaparte's projects?

The activity of Bonaparte was extreme; so was that of Cromwell. After the king's death, every despatch passed through his hands; he himself wrote the letters of greatest moment, and dictated the rest with such rapidity that the pens of his secretaries could scarcely follow. When protector, he rose at day break, devoted the whole morning to business, and remained alone a great part of the night, unremittently employed at his desk. He was acquainted with most European tongues, and an excellent Latin scholar. His enemies themselves were compelled to applaud the purity of his manners; and he checked the extravagant licentiousness of the times, not less than he did atheism and luxury; and here the comparison is greatly in favor of the British usurper. Besides, he banished duelling—introduced universal order—caused the commonwealth to be respected both at home and abroad—and alleviated the destiny of the unfortunate Waldenses by his powerful interposition—and did many good works.—But still he was a despot and a tyrant! he ruled with a sceptre of fear; and it was often openly exclaimed against him in the nation, "What! have we murdered our good king, only to subject ourselves to the tyranny of an insignificant citizen?"

And yet this execrated usurper received the most servile adulation both from his subjects and foreign powers. After burning the library at Oxford, the parliament welcomed him with warm panegyrics, and in solemn triumph. From the pulpit he was hailed as the angel of destruction to his enemies!—Moses and Aaron. On his return from Scotland in 1649, the council of state and parliament went out to meet him, attended by cavalry, and the train bands clad in new uniforms: he was greeted by discharges of artillery, and was conducted in triumph to London.

COMMUNICATED.

DIED at QUINCY, near Boston, on the 28th ult. in the 74th year of her age, Mrs. ABIGAIL ADAMS, the highly respected and beloved wife of the late president Adams.

Mrs. Adams was the daughter of the reverend William Smith, of Weymouth, in Massachusetts, and a grand-daughter of colonel John Quincy, whose memory is revered in that part of the country, and from whom the town of Quincy derived its name.

Early imbibed by her amiable and pious parents with those principles of religion which were her solace through life, and her comfort in death, she lived and died as a Christian. From her father, who was a man of liberal and classic mind, she imbibed that taste for literature which adorned her character, and enabled her to support with dignity the high station in life which she was called upon to fill; and her strong and elevated mind rendered her a fit companion of the illustrious character to which she was allied. Amidst the trying events of the revolution, in which her husband bore so conspicuous a part, she was his solace, his comfort, and his support; and her memory is entitled to share, with those vigorous minds which planned and effected that revolution, our gratitude for that glorious event. Thousands can bear witness of the propriety and dignity with which she supported the higher stations in life in which she was placed; nor were her virtues less conspicuous in the domestic circle. It was there that she exhibited an example of consummate prudence, piety, benevolence, and all those charities of life that twine round the heart and rivet the affections.

How painful must be the dissolution of such ties! How severe the stroke which rends asunder hearts welded by the constant flame of half a century!

It is said that there were five hundred applicants for the office of navy agent at New York, which became vacant by the death of Dr. Bullus. General Robert Swartwout is finally appointed. Surely, there can be no lack of patriotism, where so many are anxious to serve the public!

[Ithaca, (N. York) Journal.]

A Mr. Matthew Simmons, an old man of 80, of Springfield, Otsego county, was on the 8th inst. killed by his own son. The instrument made use of was a hoe, with which the old man's brains were beaten out. The young man had been for some time suspected of insanity, but the verdict of the coroner's inquest was murder. [Ib.]

EXTRAORDINARY YIELD.

We are credibly informed there were raised the present season on a piece of ground forty feet square, in the neighborhood of this village, twenty-eight bushels of onions. This may fairly challenge old Weathersfield! [Ibid.]

From a Calcutta paper.

Fort William, Office of Marine Board, }
May 30, 1818 }

To Merchants, Ship Owners and Commanders of Ships.

It is hereby notified, that the "Floating Light Vessel Torch," whose position was lately in the Eastern Channel, has been removed to the Western or South Channel, in ten fathoms low water, spring tides, in lat. 20. 53, N. bearing from the Reef Buoy S. a. W. where she will continue during the prevalence of the S. W. monsoon; and on its expiration to be sent back to her former station in the Eastern Channel during the N. E. monsoon, and so on in succession.

E. S. PORTBURY, Sec'y

From the Boston Centinel.

Nothing excites to usefulness more than emulation. We, therefore, receive and publish with pleasure, articles like the following:

"Foxborough, Oct. 7, 1817.—Mr. Ira Belcher, this day, dug and poured into a cart, 106 bushels of potatoes, from 1232 hills, in twelve hours. They were picked up by a boy twelve years old, in the same time.

Attest, LEVI WHITE."

"Oct. 22, 1818.—Mr. Milton Summer, dug and poured into a cart, 654 bushels in seven hours and two minutes, the same boy picking them up in six hours and thirty-two minutes.

Attest, IRA BELCHER."

A Kentucky paper says, in the approaching session, President Monroe, and Mr. Speaker Clay, will be found acting in perfect concert on the South American question. [Ibid.]

An unusual occurrence has taken place at Nantucket:—At an auction sale of household furniture, where a large company was collected, the floor of the parlor, in which the auctioneer was knocking down the articles, gave way, and precipitated nearly one hundred ladies and others, into the cellar, 9 feet, dislocating the arm of one, bruising a few others, and affrighting the whole. Providentially no lives were lost. [Ibid.]

The steam boat Delaware arrived in Philadelphia, ran the distance of 40 miles in 3 hours and 30 minutes, [performing a mile in 5 minutes and 15 seconds] and took in passengers twice on the way.

On the 1st December proximo, a new light-house will be lighted at Calais, France, with a revolving light, similar to that off Boston harbour. [Ibid.]

DECOMPOSITION OF OPIUM.

A German chymist has succeeded in decomposing opium. The active principle which he has isolated, he has called Morphine. This principle, combined with a peculiar acid, which he calls mevonick, forms opium. The Morphine is strongly alkaline, and crystallizes in prisms. It is white, little soluble in water, soluble in alcohol, particularly when heated. It forms simple and triest salts—decomposes metallic oxides, &c. &c. Three grains of Morphine given internally, are equal to ten drops of laudanum. The name of the chymist who has made this discovery, is Saturener. [Ibid.]

From the Philadelphia Gazette, Nov. 4. Extract of a letter dated Bordeaux, 14th Sept. 1818.

Cottons sustain their quotations very firm, chiefly for the superior qualities. Coffee has become rather dull these last few days, and sales have been made somewhat lower; the demand for consumption continues very trifling.

We have at present no American flour here; the actual prices however are not to be relied on with any certainty.

Tobacco has increased of late, apparently owing to the expectation of a sensible reduction in our crop, of this article, in consequence of several storms of hail having injured the plant in many districts.—The chief holders pretend as high as f. 110 120 for prime leaf Virginia; our present stock is very trifling, not exceeding 500 to 550 hhds of all kinds and indifferent choice.

Beeswax is also expected to fail in quality on account of the constant dry weather this season: the time for sales is in the end of winter.

Prices of brandies have decreased, and actual sales have taken place at fcs. 480 for simple proof. The approaching time for new brandies will keep our present stock low, and it can be anticipated that the next crop will afford them still on better terms.

LATEST FROM MALAGA.

By the brig Eliza Reilly, capt. Small, which arrived at this port last evening, in 34 days from Malaga, we learn that six or seven vessels sailed for the United States, while the Eliza Reilly was in quarantine; some partly loaded, and others in ballast, not being able to procure fruit, the demand being very great for the north of Europe, and the quantity at market very small, and prices high. Upwards of 20 British and Danish vessels had left the port in ballast.

Capt. Small left the United States sloop of war Spark, capt. Nicholson, in quarantine on the 27th Sept. [Ibid.]

THE CENSOR.

Words are like leaves, some wither every year, and every year a younger race succeeds. [Translation from Horace.]

Messrs. EDITORS,

Nothing is certainly so great a desideratum in English literature as a correct Dictionary. Those of which we are possessed, contain in general erroneous definitions; and even where they are correct, they are so concise that if we are presented with the outline of one signification, we are forced to be content—while the many others which are attached to the same word are suffered to slumber on in most ignominious security.

Words, I imagine, are nothing more than the signs of our ideas; if, therefore, our lexicographers, instead of winding on the mazes of a derivative, and informing us of our amazement what a word should mean, would only give us the ideas which are at present connected with it, they would confer a more essential benefit on society than by pursuing a harmless little particle through all the duodecimos and folios in which it seeks for refuge.

Language is liable to continual change. Words which were once in vogue are now obsolete. Some, once mouthed by every lip, are now condemned to silence; while others, which expressed a specific signification, now draw a different one in their train. Idolatry was formerly a virtue; it is now a crime. Eftsoons, yecept, whilom, &c. once held the upper seat in every sentence, they have long since descended to the tomb of departed syllables.

Fashion is the great enemy of uniformity. She delights to war upon the very substance of our ideas: she changes the ancient boundaries of speech, and destroys the very landmarks of consistency.—Under the control of this enchantress, every thing is metamorphosed: vice dwells in the edifice which virtue once inhabited; while virtue, marked with infamy, grovels in that dust from which vice was raised: the former princes, lords and burghers of the domain are reduced to the most degrading servitude, while some dapper little plebeians, who constituted, perhaps a byword of reproach, are exalted over them, arrayed in new garments, and not unbecomingly glittering with stars.

It is plain, then, that each revolving year (I had almost said each revolving year,) works an important change in our language. Like the fashion of our apparel, it is continually fluctuating, and we may in a few years be as difficult to be understood by our posterity as are at present the works of old Chaucer or Allan Ramsay. Commentator will rise upon commentator, and as is usually the case, tend to make that obscure which at present to us is plain. To obviate this, it is necessary that persons competent to the undertaking should yearly, monthly or daily, as circumstances may require, give accurate definitions (and that at some length too) of the important words then in vogue, the changes they may have undergone, the senses in which they are then employed, and the ideas to which they are attached. Of performing this important task I am totally unable; but as it may be interesting to your readers, with your permission, Messrs. Editors, I shall endeavor to mark, in a few instances, the variation of language, and the remarkable difference between the manner in which they were formerly understood, and the sense which they convey at present. For instance, let us take the word HONOUR.—This word formerly comprised within its meaning, worth, dignity and morality; at present it sanctions murder, swindling and seduction. An honorable man (in the sense in which the word is at present understood) will kill his friend, cheat his neighbor, and destroy the conjugal felicity of a benefactor. In proof of this, we need only refer to the daily accounts which we receive, of what are called 'affairs of honor,' to be fully convinced of the propriety of the above description. In short, it is at present an almost indefinite word, to which various significations are attached. In the first place, it is now used as a very convenient word to swear by; thus, 'upon my honour,' 'by my honour,' or 'upon my sacred honour,' are at present sounds signifying nothing—mere senseless expletives; they had some score more good out of a discourse, and give an apparent energy to language. Or, as it has been incontestably proved (I believe by Hudibras) that the seat of honour is somewhere near the extremity of the body, 'upon my honour,' and 'I give my honour,' may mean a reference to its distinguished residence, and is equivalent to an expression among the profane vulgar, of 'ask my honour,' by which those who despise the law of the land, and are too independent for the law of God, regulate their conduct.

DAMN, DEM, or DAMNATION.—Soft, easy, polite words, which mean nothing more or less than consigning the soul (now considered as the most worthless part of the human system) to eternal misery. The ancients had much the advantage of us in swearing; they had some score more good than we, and each of these volunteered their aid in actual service. This gave their oaths a most agreeable variety. Beside, each of these deities were famous for some distinguished attribute, or presided over some particular occupation or employment.—Thus curses were happily parcelled out to every profession, business or qualification. The drunkard swore by Bacchus—the warriors by Jupiter or Mars—all beauties were licensed to swear by Venus—Minerva stood ready to vouch for the wisdom of judges and statesmen; and a bountiful deity ever proffered a helping hand to every blacksmith, and this sooty minister of charcoal was allowed to vent his spleen and test his veracity by Vulcan. These were the great advantages in days of yore: now, we can call only on one God to damn us; and together with ourselves, every blackguard makes use of the same privilege. However, there is one consolation—what we want in variety, we make up by frequent repetition. A stock of oaths which would have lasted an ancient gentleman full two months or more, their modern descendants will frequently exhaust in less than twenty-four hours. Our forefathers were so careful of what they possessed, that they would seldom part with an oath, or even a common damn, unless on some momentous occasion; but we dissipate them on every trifling subject, and absolutely in a few days throw away more oaths of value, than a fashionable antiquity would subsist upon for a twelve month. I know I shall be thought singular in attempting to depreciate an universal practice; but my only reason is, the tremendous fear into which I am thrown, lest by being thus incautious we may exhaust the current coin of Christendom, and leave our children nothing to swear by.

Thus far, Messrs. Editors, at present.—Should what I have written not meet the disapprobation of yourselves and readers, I may pursue the subject in another number.

Letter from Algiers, April 6.

Since the departure of Ali there has been only one execution here; it was that of his brother in law, an Arab, of the name of Hadgi Mustapha, and his brother, a youth of 13 years of age; they were both tortured for 14 days, in various ways, got no sleep, and Hadgi was most severely bastinadoed. He received first, 1000 strokes, and after that 4 or 500 strokes daily. After he had received 4,500 strokes, in this manner, he was sent home, where he died two days after. The Turks feared this family very much, and have therefore extirpated it. We daily see here drunken armed Turks, in troops of six or 12 men, roving about the environs, to plunder the poor Arabs who are attacked by the plague.

The plague has not increased here, but it has spread towards the west, and extended to the two large towns of Oran and Moscat. The whole territory of Algiers suffers under this dreadful disease; there are plenty of people to be seen in the streets. Upon a little excursion which I made on horseback, I met with an incredible number of graves, both on the highway, and in the fields. In two country houses next mine 17 persons have died and only 3 remain alive.

It is uncertain whether the Algerine corsairs will go to sea or not; people say no; however, the papers requisite for a cruise have been demanded of the Consuls.

How little reliance can be placed on Algerine friendship appears from an official notice just published; according to which the Government has seized upon a Genoese brig that was lying in the harbor here, notwithstanding all the remonstrances of the Sardinian Vice-Consul. The brig has been sent to Alexandria with pilgrims, who are going to Mecca.

Valuable Land for Sale.
HAVING more land in the tract on which I reside than I can farm to advantage, I will expose to public sale, on the 5th day of NOVEMBER next, at fair, if not the next fair day, eight hundred acres, divided into lots of two hundred acres; each lot has seventy acres in wood; of the cleared land one hundred and fifty acres are in clover, and two hundred in rye and wheat. This land is situated ten miles below Alexandria, and is bounded north and east by Accotink creek, which separates the lower part of it from Jonathan Janney's mill, where the Alexandria price can be had for grain. It is as fertile as any land in the county, and as susceptible of improvement, by clover and plaster, as any I have seen. Persons wishing to view it will call on the subscriber, living at Cedar Grove, one mile below Janney's mill.
The terms will be one-third of the purchase money in hand, and the balance in two equal annual payments. The sale will take place at 12 o'clock, on the premises.
EDGAR MCCARTHY.
Fairfax Co. Va. October 6.

Gunston for Sale.
THIS elegant estate is situated on the Potomac, 16 miles below Alexandria—it is bounded on three sides by the Potomac and Pohick creek, and contains nearly 3,000 acres of land, level and fertile, to which are attached six shad and herring fisheries, two of which command the river channel. This land will be laid off in four tracts, so as to have one or more fisheries to each; these tracts will be again divided if requisite. This estate is level and beautifully situated, very fertile, and remarkably healthy. Plaster acts with an effect equal to that of any part of Virginia or Pennsylvania. I have used 500 bushels in twelve months, and such is its beneficial operation, that were I to keep this land I should considerably increase the quantity. A manufacturing mill is distant about two miles, on a stream navigable for vessels carrying 1200 bushels of wheat, where the Baltimore and Dist. of Columbia prices are given for grain; being bounded on 5 sides by water, a small extent only of fence is necessary to inclose the whole; it would be admirably adapted to grazing. The improvements are a large and very substantial brick mansion, 40 by 70 feet, with every necessary out-house, three commodious barns, houses for Negroes, and fish houses at each of the fisheries. 120,000 bricks and 1000 bushels of lime are just burnt on the premises. There is a considerable extent of live fence, both useful and ornamental, two orchards of well selected apples and peach, besides an abundance of other choice fruit. More than 150 acres are in clover, 200 in corn, and land in preparation for sowing 250 bushels of small grain. Any quantity of hay can be cut from the low grounds, some of which (and all might) have been reclaimed at a trifling expense. The river and creeks, abounded with wild fowl, particularly canvas backs, the woods with deer and a variety of other game. Mules, cattle, highly improved sheep, farming utensils and household furniture can be had. The terms of sale will be accommodating. Property in any of the cities, negroes, bank stock, western lands, or lands near the Ridge, will be taken in payment. Letters must be addressed to me at Pohick Church, Fairfax county, Virginia.
September 4. GEORGE MASON.

Valuable Property for Sale.
THE subscriber is desirous of selling a handsomely situated farm, on Hunting creek, in Fairfax county Virginia, adjoining the Mount Vernon estate and the lands of general Thomson Mason, four miles from Alexandria, containing about 240 acres, 80 of which are in wood—40 to 50 in thriving meadow of clover and timothy—a part of the residue recently seeded with wheat and rye, and clover, last spring—the whole enclosed with a new post and rail fence. The improvements are, a comfortable and convenient frame dwelling house and kitchen, smoke house, poultry house, granary and stables. There is on this place a rich and productive garden, and a large body of marsh meadow, from which may be saved annually 100 tons of hay, nearly as nutritious as the best timothy or clover. With the farm would be sold a number of very valuable horses, cows and sheep; waggon, carts, and a variety of farming utensils and household and kitchen furniture; corn, oats and rye, and 40 tons hay. Also, adjoining the one above described, a farm containing 160 acres, recently enclosed, on which is a brick house, which a trifling expense would render comfortable. The soil is excellent, and a considerable part might be easily converted into meadow—it would be sold with the other or separately. Also, a number of valuable servants, male and female. To prevent unnecessary application, he would observe, that they will only be sold to persons residing in the District or its vicinity, and not to be carried from it. The subscriber will also sell the greater part of his household furniture, which is new and handsome. For terms of all or any part of the above property, apply to NOBLET HERBERT, esq., or

PROPOSALS,
By Gideon Fairman, John Binns and Charles S. Parker, to PUBLISH A Splendid Edition of Washington's Farewell Address, To the People of the United States. THE world has seen enough of warriors and of Heroes—enough of Statesmen—of men who have guided Armies in the field, or dictated as Sages in the Cabinet, for the exclusive purpose of Ambition. History from its earliest page to the present day, has offered to our contemplation, only ONE WASHINGTON, but ONE MAN, whose dangers in war, and labors in peace, were undertaken and supported with a single eye, to the benefit of his country; whose wonderful and honorable success, was the plain result of wisdom in design, and valor in execution; whom danger never appalled, nor defeat depressed; who, persevering in the justice of his cause, won Victory till he won her: who coveted no reward but the well earned approbation of those whose interest he lived to promote: who renounced all public honors, when they ceased to be the necessary instruments of good to the people, whose gratitude conferred them: who superior to all Monarchs, was content to be called the American Citizen. His career of glory through life was unstinted by crime; and his death was felt as a loss by every individual of that community, whose political existence was the fruit of his exertions.

THE FAREWELL ADDRESS of General Washington is the condensed result of long experienced, matured reflection and strong anxiety for the permanent prosperity of his country. His advice concerning the great importance of maintaining indissolubly the federal Union: the danger of indulging too much in party feelings—the necessity of supporting public credit at home—of maintaining public faith in all our transactions with foreign nations: of encouraging foreign intercourse free from foreign attachments—are so many lessons of prudence which we should do well to bear in constant remembrance. Why therefore should not his legacy of wisdom and affection, be so published, as to admit of being constantly before our eyes? An ornament to our apartments, while it serves as a memento to guide our public feelings, and to manifest that the author lives in our memories?

To make it such, is the aim of the proposed Edition. The Publishers are determined that the Address shall be printed on paper of the same quality and size as the splendid edition of the Declaration of Independence now engraving, & shall in all respects be a companion worthy that great State paper. As errors are known from various causes to find their way into the most important writings, the publishers feel it their duty, not only to satisfy themselves, but to satisfy the public, of the authenticity of the copy from which this splendid Edition of the Farewell Address shall be published.

MR. GEORGE BRIDPORT will complete the Design; of which the following is an outline:—The introductory part of the Address, in highly finished ornamental penmanship, shall form the upper part;—the other parts of the plate, shall be appropriate ornaments;—in the centre below shall be engraved, from an historical design for this publication by Mr. Sully the Surrender of the British Army at York-town, October 19, 1781.

The Address itself shall be printed with type of a peculiar and appropriate character, designed for this purpose by Mr. Fairman, and to be cut and cast by our best artists. No more of the type shall be cast than will be necessary to execute this Address; & when it shall be completed, the type and the matrices in which it was cast shall be utterly destroyed; so that no other work shall ever be executed by the same letter which shall have printed the "FAREWELL ADDRESS" of him who lived and died, first in War; first in Peace, and first in the hearts of his Countrymen.

The paper, of the first quality, 36 by 26 inches, will be made by Mr. Amies. The INK shall be carefully prepared, and of the best materials. The signature of General Washington from which it is proposed to execute a fac simile for this publication, is that which he affixed to the Constitution of the United States, when he signed it as President of the Convention in which it was framed; Thus associating and concentrating some of the greatest events in the life of this great man and in the history of his Country.

The ornamental writing will be designed and executed in the very best manner; the ornamental parts of the design and vignette, will be engraved by G. FAIRMAN; and the Typographical part executed by John Binns. They will take especial care of the execution of their several duties in this respect, and they will call to their aid, all that liberality, zeal and industry can command from the Sciences and Arts, so as to make the "Farewell Address" no mean specimen of the state of the Fine Arts in the United States.

As much progress has already been made in designing and procuring materials for this splendid edition of Gen. Washington's "Farewell Address," it is expected it will be ready for delivery, with the Splendid Edition of the Declaration of Independence, in the month of December next. That the public may have a more perfect view of the design and style of execution, than can be given in a proposal, of this Tribute to the memory of him who was "a Conqueror for the Freedom of his Country! A Legislator for its Security! A Magistrate for its Happiness," it is not intended to solicit any Subscription until the Ornamental parts of the plate shall be executed. It will then be submitted for public inspection and public patronage, at five dollars a Copy payable on the delivery of the Engraving. Philadelphia, July 31.
